Thieves Steal $2,000.00 At Zak's

Zak's Meats and Grocery Store on main street was broken into November 11th and thieves made good their getaway with more than $2000 in cash.

The thieves dragged out an eight hundred pound safe placed against a wall and moved the unit to the centre of the small office room at the back of the store. The safe was dumped over on its back and with the aid of an eight pound sledge hammer and several crow bars tore out the front of the unit. Entry into the store was gained by knocking steel bars out of a window at the rear of the store.

Proprietor of the store Henry Zak stated that he had been at the store the night previous about 7.10 p.m. and had locked the safe then. He noticed the break in about 9.00 a.m. November 11th when he went to the store to work on a new addition he is adding to his present building. Mr. Zak fortunately had banked other monies Nov. 10. He also had some personal documents and other items in the safe and it is not yet known if these were taken. RCMP of the Blairmore detachment are investigating.

Slam! Flush! 29!

Aldo Ferrara, Boiler Room, is a cribbage player of long standing, and recently he picked up a perfect crib hand. "29 points — most you can score" he says proudly. "29 points in cribbage," explains Aldo patiently, "is like a grand slam in bridge or a royal flush in poker."

Aldo has been playing crib for 18 years and likes good competition. One of his favorite opponents is David Christensen "good cribbage player" says Aldo.

Aldo was born and raised in Coleman, but now resides in Quincy, Mass., USA. He will still be remembered by many here.

Captain James Cook was the first white "logger" in British Columbia when he visited, Nootka Sound in 1778 to renew masts and spars for his ship.

Two printers stopped each other on the street. The hectic nature of their business worlds was the subject of conversation. One printer said, "You sure look worried." "Man," said the second printer, "I've got so many troubles that if anything bad happens today, it will be at least two weeks before I can worry about it."

Council Meet Peter Loughheed MLA

Peter Loughheed MLA (P.C.) and a group of Progressive Conservative members met with Coleman Council at a dinner held at the Satellite Cafe last week.

After hearing some of the problems of the town of Coleman and the entire Crows Nest Pass, Mr. Loughheed said "pollution and the economy of Southern Alberta need the prompt attention of the Provincial Government. He said the citizens of some 15 communities visited in the south, are concerned over pollution.

It is clear, he said, from our experience in Lethbridge, Bassano, and Taber, that the provincial government has to provide capital finance for sewage treatment plants.

The provincial government, he added, should co-ordinate the use of federal aid in the area, including that under the "designated area" program.

High School Progressing

Fire Dangers In Trailers

By A. E. BRIDGES
(Alberta Fire Commissioner)

The word "home" has many pleasing connotations. It suggests a place of rest after a long hard trip, it is a place for understanding and companionship; it symbolizes safety and security.

"Home" these days includes a trailer court home or a mobile home. With increased mobility of the population the image of "home" suffers a transition. A closer look will reveal a rather drastic shift in values. In fact convenience and mobility results in less safety and security.

For example, a mobile home or trailer home must be compact. Built-in features include heating and cooking units. Like in the traditional home, there are combustibles near heat sources, but nearer in the case of trailers. A gas stove or oil stove leak is more likely in trailers due to design and less stable construction features. Added to all other hazards is the fact that occupants are immediately exposed to any accidental fire. Perhaps worst of all, there is the ever present danger in a small tightly-closed trailer area of suffering from a deficiency of oxygen with the accompanying deadly carbon monoxide risk.

There is good reason to select a CSA listed mobile home in which life safety is given prime consideration in equipment installation and design. But, there are many trailers and trailer homes in use lacking some safety features and not likely to have safety inspection services to spot trouble.

If you live in a trailer, give fire safety full attention at all times.

Cruel Trapping Continues

The Canadian Association for Humane Trapping (CAHT) recently submitted a brief to Premier Strom, urging his government to take immediate steps toward eliminating cruel methods of obtaining furs in Alberta.

A spokesman for CAHT said that "with the beginning of another trapping season, thousands of wild fur-bearing animals will suffer from pain and exposure in leg-hold traps before they are killed".

In submitting the brief, CAHT hopes that the government of Alberta will join with other provincial governments to help solve this nation-wide problem.

It is felt that the positive steps that are clearly laid out in the brief would prove beneficial to the fur industry as a whole.

Fatalities Down For September

Perhaps Lady Luck was one of the hitch-hikers picked up by Alberta motorists during September. Whatever the reason, traffic fatalities were well down during the month, and this has helped slacken the dizzy upward spiral road casualties in this province.

The Alberta Safety Council reports 29 deaths during the month, down from 42 during September last year. The five year average for traffic fatalities in Alberta is 39.

This brings to 310 the number of deaths in Alberta by the end of September, up by four per cent from the year before. This rise can be blamed on the very high number of summer deaths. During July and August, 126 people died in road accidents in this province.

However, traffic injuries continue to run ahead of the rate for the same month last year. One thousand and twenty-six were injured during September, compared with 950 one year ago. Total injuries for the year so far reached 7,640. That is four per cent higher than ever before.

Traffic accidents as a whole were still running away ahead of last year, up by 17 per cent at the end of September. The total was 39,593, up by about 6,000.

Of the 29 who died, 21 were on rural roads or highways. Three deaths occurred in Edmonton and five were recorded in Calgary. All other centers were fatality-free in September.

Jehovah's Witnesses Semi-Annual Conference

What is it like to teach more than 800 persons all at one time? John Jones, a resident of Hillcrest is able to tell you after Sunday, November 2. At that time, at the Sports Center in Lethbridge, he addressed the delegates of the Alberta No. 1 Circuit of Jehovah's Witnesses at their semi-annual conference held in that city October 31 to November 2.

Mr. Jones, presiding minister of the Coleman Congregation, spoke on the subject, "Teaching and Declaring the Good News". His qualifications are derived from training received in the Gilead Bible training school of New York, the Theocratic Ministry School of Jehovah's Witnesses, and from experience of over 25 years as a working minister.

Accompanying him was his wife, Chris, and their three daughters ages 8 and 5 years. "Teaching begins at home," Mr. Jones explained, "so we take our wives and children with us for training. Sharing together in this way keeps up the lines of communication that deter any generation gap", he said.

The convention concluded Sunday, November 2 at 3 p.m. when Douglas Clegg, district supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses delivered the public talk, "True Worship Versus the False".

All sessions of the convention were free to the public.

Trans-Canada Microwave System

Alberta Government Telephones is carrying out a $2½ million project to complete its portion of a northern Trans-Canada microwave system.

The new facilities will provide 1,200 communications channels through the northern part of the province from Lloydminster to Boyle, 960 channels from Boyle to Peace River, and 1,200 again from Peace River to Dawson Creek. A branch from this system will provide 1,200 channels south to Calgary to connect with the southern Trans-Canada microwave system.

The new facilities will be connected with Edmonton by a 960 channel spur line, but the main system will bypass the major center. This is part of a province-wide plan to eventually ring the larger cities with microwave towers at a 30-mile radius, rather than crowd an excessive number of circuits through areas where tall buildings interfere with transmission.

AGT's key location for the new system is Chipman where an investment of almost $1 million is being made for a tower, microwave, and multiplex equipment. The new Chipman tower—one of the tallest in Canada—is at present reaching its full height of 470 feet. It will initially have eight parabolic dish antennas, with an ultimate capacity of 16.

A 30 by 40 foot addition is being made to the Chipman microwave and multiplex building.

At Kingman, an expenditure of $257,000 will be made on a 375-foot microwave tower and a new metal microwave building. At Vegreville, an expenditure of $157,000 will be made, and will include alarm signals for the entire system. Other major expenditures will be made at Innisfree, $145,000, and Kavanagh, $117,000.

The new system is the most complex microwave project undertaken by AGT to date, and is scheduled to be put into service on October 2, 1970.

Don't Forget the Mentally Ill This Christmas

The Canadian Mental Health Association in Alberta is already well under way with its preparations for Christmas programs for the mentally ill. Thousands of letters have been sent to organizations and individuals outlining the programs and ways in which the communities can help meet the needs.

Mrs. Jack Shadden, provincial chairman of the community services committee for the Association emphasizes that the success of the programs depends on the continuing support of the groups and individuals that the Canadian Mental Health Association has received in past years.

A significant number of the nearly 4,000 patients in Alberta mental institutions do not have regular frequent contact with friends or relatives. The gifts received by the association are distributed to the mental hospitals in our province, to make certain that the patients are not forgotten at a time when it is so important to the rest of us.

Some of the programs sponsored by the association are designed to provide a happier Christmas for ex-patients living in the community who have no friends or relatives with whom to share the season's pleasures. Christmas parties, a customary Yuletide event, are held at the White Cross centers. A special event is the relatives-patients dinner held at the Alberta Hospital Ponoka. This program is designed to allow the sharing of Christmas with relatives for those patients who will not be going home for the festivities. Donations of hams, turkeys, Christmas baking, or funds with which to purchase these items, are one of the ways in which people can assist in these programs.

In recent years, some citizens have opened their homes to ex-patients on Christmas Day by inviting them to share their Christmas dinner in a family setting. If this is something that you would like to do, arrangements can be made by contacting the association offices in Edmonton or Calgary.

Anyone interested in assisting the Christmas programs for these patients should contact the nearest Canadian Mental Health Association office. In the Lethbridge area, phone 327-0100, or write to Box 33, Lethbridge.

Nurses Favor Council On Nursing

The Alberta Association of Registered Nurses has approved in principle the establishing of a co-ordinating council on nursing.

The AARN believes that coordination of nursing services through government legislation would be an important factor towards improving patient care to the public.

A task committee studying submissions of members regarding Bill 119, introduced during the last session of the Alberta Legislature, designed to establish a council of nursing, reported that the bill as presented was unacceptable throughout the province. The committee recommended that legislation should ensure protection of professional prerogatives.

The association will meet with the minister of health in mid-November to discuss the proposed legislation.

...what happens to an apparently heirless estate?

First, the heirs that are not apparent, but who do exist are located by the Alberta Department of the Attorney General. The department's Public Trustee Office begins an immediate search for relatives living outside the province, and an estate officer is appointed to keep everything in order until money matters can be properly settled. Public trustee administrators are also called upon to look after the affairs of hospital patients suffering from mental illness, and directing businesses and handling assets for dependents of missing persons.

Assistance in the form of property care is also provided, under court appointment, for elderly men and women in nursing homes. The Public Trustee Office also acts as guardian for minors, administering inheritance or trust funds where no other provision has been made.

...what protection you have against 'shocking' accidents?

You have all the safeguards set up by the Alberta Department of Labour. To help save you from the risk of electrical accidents the Electrical Protection Branch examines, tests, rejects or approves any new electrical product offered for sale in the province.

It also has final authority to enforce safety standards for your protection. Over forty provincial inspectors, working with municipal authorities, are kept busy investigating and preventing accidents. They also carry out a co-ordinated program of certification of electrical workers, approval of equipment and inspect work, inside and outside wiring and line construction.

To give proper direction and interpretation of the electrical code and to promote all aspects of electrical safety in the province, the Electrical Protection Branch sends out over 4,000 copies of a regular news bulletin to the electrical trades and contracting industries. Skilled experts from the Branch are always ready to conduct seminars or to give illustrated presentations to provide you with the facts you need for electrical safety.

A little friendly co-operation is all it takes for you and a group of associates to set up a chartered co-operative, with rights similar to a limited company. ...what you can learn from a 'living' map?

You can actually see the changes in the history and development of our province by comparing the hundreds of colorful maps prepared for the Atlas of Alberta by the Maps and Aerial Photography Branch of the Alberta Department of Lands and Forests in co-operation with the University of Alberta. The first edition of this unique and detailed documentation in map form contains over 170 pages and will be available for general distribution early in 1970. In addition to preparing and maintaining all provincial reference material this Branch provides almost a quarter of a million individual maps, plans and aerial photographs requested by the public in a year.

...contributing to Alberta's school curriculum?

Any suggestions you have about what subjects or courses you think will give today's students a better education will be considered by the Division of Instruction of the Alberta Department of Education. To help channel your ideas into effective improvements, members of a special advisory committee meet regularly throughout the year to review school curricula and make recommendations to the instruction division. They study all letters and submissions from anyone in the province concerned with regular school teaching programs and activities.

Letters to the Editor

Coleman Journal,
Coleman, Alta.

Dear Editor,

The recent articles by former Coleman resident Dave Gillespie proved most interesting, reviewing nearly 50 years of activities connected with the town and the coal mining industry. It is remarkable that though over 90 years of age he can recall so many of the details of the ups and downs during those years, which had their periods of controversy and union rivalries.

I remember many friends during my residence in Coleman from 1927 till 1940, many of whom have died or moved to other places. It is highly commendable that you have been able to continue publishing The Journal, despite the setbacks the town has experienced due to the decline of the coal industry.

Many thanks to yourself and Mr. Gossage for the publication of his reviews.

Yours sincerely,

—H. T. HALLIWELL

1969 Cable Program Completed

Alberta Government Telephones has completed the '69 portion of its $80 million rural buried cable program. By the end of 1973, the program will have brought four-party divided-ring service to almost all of the rural subscribers throughout the province.

To date, A.G.T. has invested $42.3 million in the program. Approximately 34,700 miles of cable and wire have been buried, and facilities have been installed to provide 34,000 farms with service.

Buried cable results in more dependable customer service, lower maintenance costs, and the elimination of unsightly pole lines.

The Path Of Insanity

The International Red Cross estimate that wars this century alone have already killed 90,000,000 people. The world's nations have spent some $2,000 billion on armaments in the 20th century, and 150 wars and conflicts on five continents have caused damage several times this amount.

It is indeed a sorry record for modern man who considers himself the wisest and most civilized of the world's creatures, who truly believes he is one better than his forebears of the past centuries.

Despite the repeated warnings of the past seven decades, the world is moving toward the 1970s with the basic question of disarmament far from resolved. On the contrary, in the fearsome arsenals of the super powers, weapons of mass destruction are piling up at an alarming rate.

Annual defense expenditures by the great powers and other nations are heading toward the $200 billion mark, so it will take briefly another decade to double that total the arms race has spent on arms and on keeping enemies away.

Unless the arms race is halted, future generations may well look back to those 90,000,000 killed in 70 years not with horror, but with some surprise. For if ever the super powers start hurling their nuclear weapons, far more than 90,000,000 probably will be killed in the first hours of the next global war. Today, the United States and the Soviet Union already have thousands of atomic warheads and intercontinental missiles which can be fired at a moment's notice. For mankind to keep racing along this path is not just dangerous. It is insanity.

FUA Membership Drive

With 30,000 unit memberships on its records for 1968-69 the Farmers' Union of Alberta announced the '69-70 drive for members.

In a brief ceremony at the Provincial Agriculture Building Friday afternoon, honorary chairman of the drive, Provincial Agricultural Minister Henry Ruste signed up representatives of other Alberta farm organizations to illustrate the campaign theme "Unity Through Co-operation".

Receiving 1969-70 membership cards from Mr. Ruste were George Sayle, president of the United Farmers of Alberta Cooperative Ltd.; Omar Broughton, on behalf of Gordon Harrold, president of the Alberta Wheat Pool, and Ray Carlson on behalf of Alan Smith, first vice-president of United Grain Growers.

FUA president Paul Babey told the gathering in Mr. Ruste's office, the organization will not only achieve its goal of 35,000 unit memberships set last year, but will surpass that substantially.

Mr. Babey thanked the minister for participation as honorary chairman for the second year in a row, and commented that Mr. Ruste certainly played a part in setting the new membership record.
